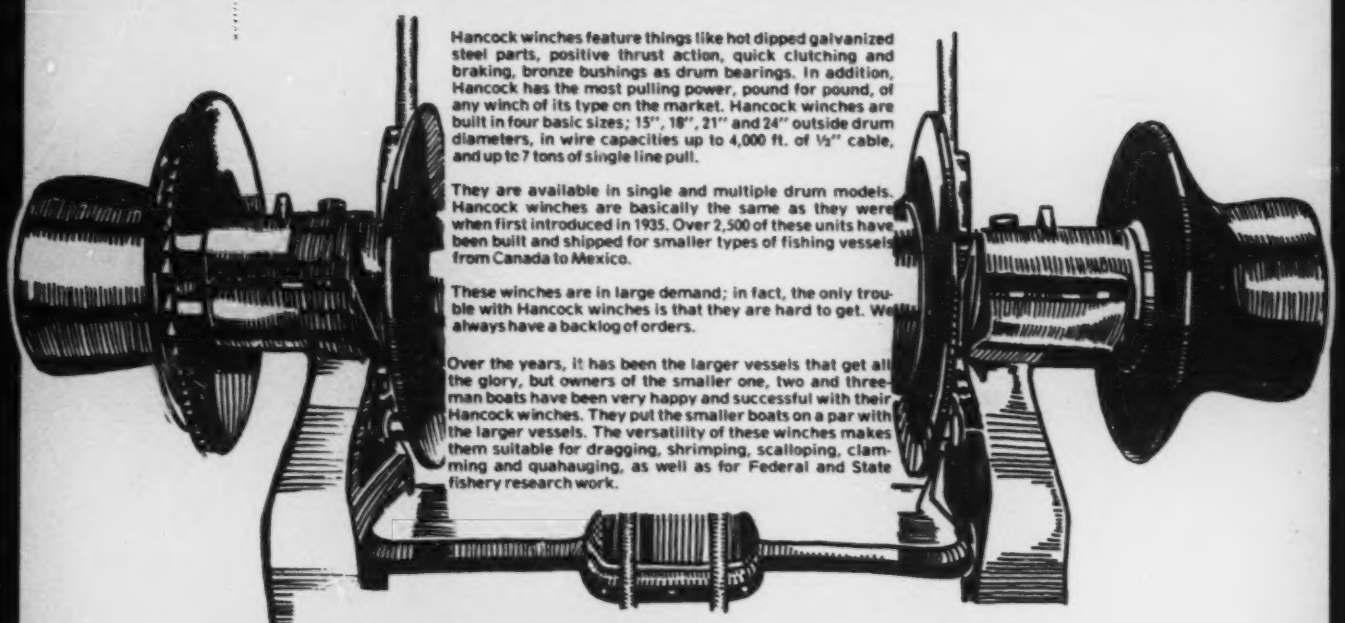
HANCOCK WINCHES



Hancock winches feature things like hot dipped galvanized steel parts, positive thrust action, quick clutching and braking, bronze bushings as drum bearings. In addition, Hancock has the most pulling power, pound for pound, of any winch of its type on the market. Hancock winches are built in four basic sizes; 15", 18", 21" and 24" outside drum diameters, in wire capacities up to 4,000 ft. of ½" cable, and up to 7 tons of single line pull.

They are available in single and multiple drum models. Hancock winches are basically the same as they were when first introduced in 1935. Over 2,500 of these units have been built and shipped for smaller types of fishing vessels from Canada to Mexico.

These winches are in large demand; in fact, the only trouble with Hancock winches is that they are hard to get. We always have a backlog of orders.

Over the years, it has been the larger vessels that get all the glory, but owners of the smaller one, two and three-man boats have been very happy and successful with their Hancock winches. They put the smaller boats on a par with the larger vessels. The versatility of these winches makes them suitable for dragging, shrimping, scalloping, clamming and quahauging, as well as for Federal and State fishery research work.

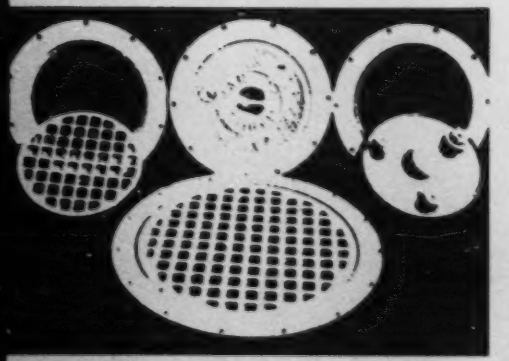
WIRE CABLE BLOCKS

Hancock wire cable blocks are made for the fishing trade in over 50 sizes and types, from 3" to 22" outside sheave diameters, in various widths, with up to 40 tons safe working load. Upright and flat deck blocks are made in all the various sizes as well as custom versions of the cable blocks. The steel cheeks are all hot-dipped galvanized, and we use bronze-bushed sheaves with pressure lubrication — none of the so-called anti-friction bearings — we make only marine blocks. Our blocks will run completely under salt water for an extended period of time, and are in use from the Arctic to the Tropics. We make trawl, dangeline, gallows, beckett, steering, quarter, hook-ups, deck, towing, purse and lobster blocks.

HANCOCK WINCH HEADS are manufactured in 4" to 12" barrel diameters, in both open fishermen type and double flanged type. Cast iron and bronze in stock — cast steel made on special order. Available blank or bored and keyed.

12 x 6 gallows tow block and 12 x 6 upright deck block.



Available in 10, 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 24, 30, and 36 inch inside diameters. Now 14" x 24" oval.

Aluminum Deck Bunker Plates

Flush mounted watertight hatches, the Hancock deck plate has no projections to foul lines, or trip deckhands. It secures watertight by the cam locks on the cover. Cam locks are turned by a T wrench.

Made from an Aluminum Magnesium alloy, which has a high resistance to oxidation, and absorbs shock at least 4 times harder than cast iron deckplates, without breaking. Our deckplates weigh 40% of what iron deckplates weigh. Aluminum dampens vibration better than iron or steel deckplates.

Aluminum deckplates are non-magnetic, non-sparking, and non-toxic. Provide more and better advantages than any other deckplate; in fact, the only thing that's modest about Hancock deckplates is the price. It's actually lower than old fashioned conventional deckplates.

Try Hancock deckplates as original equipment or for replacement of your old iron covers and grates. The attitude of the deckhand using our deckplates more than compensates initial investment.

Deckplates are not necessarily our specialty — They are just another item we can build better than anyone else.

We also have been building for over 30 years our water jacketed exhaust deck plates for dry exhaust systems in sizes from 2" to 6" and larger.

McKissick Trawl Blocks

Standard equipment on today's shrimp trawler for the same reason that any piece of equipment becomes the standard in any field—it performs so well that a substitute is virtually unthinkable. After all, it was the McKissick rugged, free-running, non-corrosive double rig trawl block and try-net block that revolutionized shrimp trawling.

Crosby-Laughlin Fittings

The most recognized and trusted line of fittings for your trawler. Load-Rated® shackles, turnbuckles, swivels, eyes and all Crosby-Laughlin fittings are forged of selected, heat-treated steels. Non-corrosive and trouble-free, they do their job and do it well.

Western Tackle Blocks

Another familiar name to marine riggers throughout the world who know the importance of trouble-free performance. Think first of Western whenever you think of tackle blocks for manila and wire rope, marine blocks, snatch blocks and sheaves. McKissick blocks, Western blocks and Crosby-Laughlin fittings are all made by The Crosby Group, a name you should know.
